1st Seminar: 11-12 April 2005

Title: Instructed second language learning: state of the art

Proposed by: Rosamond Mitchell and Emma Marsden

Location: University of York

For further information contact:
Prof. Rosamond Mitchell
Centre for Applied Language Research
Modern Languages
University of Southampton
Southampton SO17 1BJ
Tel: 02380 592231
e-mail: r.f.mitchell@soton.ac.uk

Dr. Emma Marsden
Department of Educational Studies
University of York
York YO10 5DD
Tel: 01904 433335
e-mail: em502@york.ac.uk

Aims:
• To review recent theoretical and methodological developments in research into language learning and teaching, in face to face and virtual settings;
• To bring together BAAL members with research interests in language learning and teaching from diverse educational sectors (UK foreign languages, ESOL etc) and explore shared agendas and potential collaborative research programmes;
• To explore research implications of current policy and curriculum initiatives in language education at UK and European level (the UK National Languages Strategy, the Common European Framework for Languages);
• To launch the proposed new BAAL Special Interest Group in language teaching and learning.
2nd Seminar: July 2005 over 2 days

Title: Language Learning/Teaching as Social (Inter)Action

Proposed by: Dr Zhu Hua, Dr Paul Seedhouse, Professor Li Wei and Professor Vivian Cook

Location: School of Education, Communication & Language Sciences
        University of Newcastle, Newcastle on Tyne NE1 7RU, UK

For further information contact:
        Professor Li Wei, PhD
        Professor of Applied Linguistics
        Head, School of Education, Communication & Language Sciences
        Joseph Cowan House
        University of Newcastle upon Tyne NE1 7RU
        Great Britain
        Phone: +44 (0)191 222 6760
        Fax: +44 (0)191 222 6550
        E-mail: li.wei@ncl.ac.uk

Aims:
• Facilitate paradigm change by investigating language learning/teaching from a social constructional perspective
• Explore the implications of such a paradigm shift for the practice of language teaching and learning including teacher education.
• Explore the interdisciplinary links of the social constructionist approach to language learning/teaching and other approaches (e.g. interactional approach, culture and context approach)
3rd Seminar: 18-19 November 2005

Title: Special Contributions of Different Theoretical and Methodological Approaches to Gender and Language Study

Proposed by: Lia Litosseliti, Kate Segall & Jane Sunderland

Location: Birmingham University

For further information contact:

Dr. Lia Litosseliti
Department of Language and Communication Science
City University
Northampton Square
London EC1V 0HB
Phone no.: 0780 8065351
llitosseliti@city.ac.uk

Kate Segall
58 Alexandra Road, Kew,
Richmond, Surrey, TW9 2BS.
Phone no. 0208 332 3094.
kate.segall@btopenworld.com
k.segall@roehampton.ac.uk

Dr. Jane Sunderland
Dept. of Linguistics and English Language
Lancaster University
Lancs, LA1 4YT
j.sunderland@lancs.ac.uk
Phone no.: 01524 382050

Aims:

1. To bring together researchers working in the field of gender and language but within different theoretical and methodological approaches, for example:
   - Conversation analysis
   - Corpus linguistics
   - Critical discourse analysis
   - Discourse analysis
   - Discursive psychology
   - Ethnography
   - Feminist theory
   - Media studies
   - Pragmatics
   - Queer theory
   - Sociolinguistics
   - Stylistics
(2) To identify and, where appropriate, evaluate the special contributions of each of these different theoretical and methodological approaches to gender and language study

(3) To discuss
  - changing research paradigms in gender and language study
  - relationships between theoretical/methodological approach and research questions
  - relationships between theoretical/methodological approach and data types
  - whether a particular approach can ever be meaningfully said to be ‘particularly appropriate’ for gender and language study
  - questions of complementarity and compatibility of different approaches
  - implications for the development of interdisciplinarity in gender and language study

(4) To identify and explore new or unusual, but potentially fruitful, combinations of approaches for gender and language study

(5) To identify implications for the teaching of gender and language, in terms of course content, including the role of ‘different approaches’

(6) To begin work on a proposal for an edited CUP collection on this topic, with contributions by individuals and groups from the seminar, including groups consisting of people who usually work within different theoretical/methodological approaches

(7) To outline a longer-term research agenda for projects combining one or more of the above approaches

(8) To develop a sense of cohesion and identity in the proposed new Gender and Language BAAL SIG (potential group members have now met twice, and there is considerable interest here)